Incident at Wytch Farm Oilfield

Perenco UK has advised that there has been a limited oil leak at one of its well sites in its Wytch Farm operations in Dorset.

As a precaution, Perenco's containment team has erected booms and the source is now contained.

A small amount of oil leaked into Poole harbour and a clean-up operation is underway.

Perenco's own incident management team was activated immediately and the access road to the site has been temporarily closed. All relevant authorities have been informed.

Further information will be made available in due course.
